Consent to Participate in Class Research Project

Prof. Sharon Rose is teaching a class on Multilingualism. Students taking the class have been assigned a project in which they need to interview someone about the languages they speak and their linguistic background. They must turn in a written report based on the interview, addressing topics they learned in class.

If you agree to participate, you will be asked some questions about the languages you speak and how you learned them, with whom you speak them, etc.. Participation is entirely voluntary. You may refuse to participate or withdraw at any time. The student may request to record the interview. The recording will be erased after the class is finished.

Your name will be kept anonymous in the report and the report will not be incorporated in any published or presented research. It is strictly for the educational purposes of this class. If the report receives an 'A', it may be used as an example for future classes only.

You agree to participate.
